

FACT CHECK:

This following paragraph is from an email that seems to contradict a warning in the Bricklayers' own newsletter.

"I can't empathize it enough if you ever want a vote you have to sign a card, Signing a card gives you the right to vote it does not determine the vote if you don't sign a card there will be no vote!!"

An article from the BACU (BRICKLAYERS) 2012 Newsletter warns members NOT to sign a card during a union raid.

FALL EDITION 2012

BACU HERALD

Unfortunately other Unions do not have the same interest in better membership representation and some of them are merely desperate for more dues income. If you encounter someone who asks you to sign a membership card in their union do not sign anything. You will be signing away your membership in the BACU, limiting your work opportunities and your right to work under a BACU Collective Agreement. It is important that you immediately inform your Business Manager of this because this may be an indication that a larger raid is planned against the BACU.
